

Dr. Campbell-Whatley – Consultation and Collaboration – Transcript

Hello, welcome to Consultation and Collaboration, 6690. In this class you are going to brush up your skills on collaborating with families and with teachers.

And, so we're going to learn how to do active listening, and we're going to do role plays, and exciting things like that. You have several assignments; you'll do group work, you'll do group tests, you'll do an individual family plan, you'll do a diversity presentation that includes learning about a particular set of people like African Americans or Native Americans or Hispanic Americans, and you'll do that as a group, so I am just looking forward to working with you in this class and I'll see you.